
Best Onboard Tutoring Company 2024

Life on the ocean is often characterised by exotic locations, cultural experiences, and the freedom to roam to your heart's desire. But, when it comes to raising your family onboard, there is much to consider. Whilst the unique educational experiences are manifold, providing your children with a structured education can be challenging. An award-winning, private tutoring company, Sea Tutors was established by the prestigious Tutors International, with the aim of providing students on the sea with consistent academic resources and learning opportunities. Below, we speak with Joanna Dunckley at Sea Tutors, as the company is named in the Marine Tourism Awards 2024.

A division of the renowned Tutors International, Sea Tutors draws upon more than 25 years of experience to offer tailored learning experiences that cater to the unique challenges posed by a yachting lifestyle. The company serves families seeking a high-quality education for their children whilst they travel, ensuring that learning always aligns with their lifestyle and their children are equipped with an understanding of the world around them that well-prepares them to become conscientious members of society.

Sea Tutors prioritises personalised learning, holistic development, and environmental awareness, and is committed to creating enriching educational experiences that help its students thrive both academically and personally. Since its inception, Sea Tutors has been focused on delivering full-time, high-quality tutoring services that are personalised to meet each student's individual needs, whether they require support for learning differences or enrichment during extended periods of travel.

Joanna Dunckley is a marine scientist, private tutor and part of the Sea Tutors team. "I've had so many memorable moments," Joanna tells us. "One was a biology lesson on reptiles after watching sea snakes lay eggs on the beach. Another was stumbling on ant colonies on a beach in Australia and then spending the rest of the week learning about ants. And of course, languages are magical. In the Mediterranean, for example, you can take the kids ashore and get them to order their own breakfast and shop at local markets. They are learning without realising."

"What sets us apart from competitors is our deep understanding of both education and the yachting lifestyle," Joanna tells us. "Our unique selling point lies in our ability to combine academic excellence with a focus on marine and environmental education, crafting rich, immersive learning experiences that extend beyond traditional classrooms."

Sea Tutors understands the complexities that come with life on the sea, and strives to provide its clients with flexible, bespoke tutoring that fit seamlessly around their travels and the unique lifestyle challenges they commonly face. Sea Tutors and its parent company, Tutors International, have made significant contributions to the educational future of its students, having made more than 550 tutor placements with over 850,000 hours of education for its students. Sea Tutors has had a transformative impact on its students and their families, taking an approach that is not just about academic achievement, but also about fostering a lifelong love for learning and deep appreciation for the environment.

The company's internal culture is built upon collaboration, innovation, and a commitment to excellence, with open communication and contribution highly encouraged amongst the team. By nurturing a motivated and engaged team, the company continues to set the standard for high-quality private tutoring.

"At Sea Tutors, we focus on matching the right tutors to the right families. Having been a tutor myself for many years, I know exactly what it takes to excel in this role," explains Joanna. "It's not just about being an experienced teacher; it's about understanding how to integrate seamlessly with a family - aligning with their values, personalities, and unique dynamics. That's why we always meet families in person before starting the recruitment process. We'll spend time chatting with the children, exploring their spaces, maybe even playing a board game, and sharing a meal together. It's the perfect way to get a feel for the family."

The company demonstrates an unfaltering commitment to enhancing the academic opportunities of its clients' children, alongside an unparalleled expertise that has earned Sea Tutors the title of Best Onboard Tutoring Company 2024.

"Looking ahead, our focus will be on raising awareness of the marine environment, encouraging a more conscious approach to life onboard," Joanna concludes. "We aim to educate clients about both the positive and negative impacts the yachting community can have on the marine ecosystem, highlighting small behavioural changes that can make a big difference. Clients will have the opportunity to enjoy and explore the stunning locations they visit whilst being guided by an experienced educator."
